

Port Royal Probate Inventories

Historical records for Jamaica are distributed between the Jamaica Public Archives and the Island Record Office, both of which are located in Spanish Town, Jamaica. Records begin with the English occupation of Jamaica in 1655; Spanish records from the period prior to 1655 did not survive.

The probate inventories are housed in the Jamaica Public Archives and, as with the Port Royal wills, are actually transcriptions themselves. The originals were copied in 1839 in an effort to preserve the public records. Apparently, the original inventories were destroyed once the volumes were transcribed. Unfortunately, the transcription of one volume (Volume 4) is missing.

The following selected transcribed probate inventories cover the period from 1674-1716 (Volumes 1-10). They are all of Port Royal residents and were transcribed by graduate students from microfiche copies housed in the Anthropology Department of Texas A&M University. An equal number of wills and inventories from the other Jamaican parishes have been transcribed and will be posted at a latter date. Much work still has to be done before all the probate inventories are transcribed and saved in electronic format. (You will notice that by far most of the work has concentrated on Volume 3, since this is the period right before and after the earthquake and thus is of particular interest.) This page will be continually updated as the work proceeds.

I should be noted that there is a wide ranges of inventories. Most are of adult males, but a number of inventories of women are present. Likewise there are a number of wills and inventories of the Jewish population of Port Royal. In most instances these are apparent from the Portuguese surnames. At least one will was written in Portuguese. There are also a number of Dutch surnames present.

NOTE: Some of the transcribed inventories below have a corresponding will in the Port Royal Wills document ¹The meaning of this word is unknown as it was not found in the dictionary.

²Though it is not legible, it would make sense that this is bowls.

³There is a difference of 43 pounds from the items listed and the sum total. This inventory was dark and hard to read, many of the numbers are the best guess that I can make as to what is there. Some are probably incorrect, but the spirit of the amount is there. A large portion of the 43 pounds could come from the 10 chairs, that amount for that was illegible.

In witness were of was here unto put our hands and seales this third day of April 1712

In obedience to a Dedimus to me Directed I have as ministered an oath to John Hayle and Samuel Hill pusruant to the Discretion of the said Dedimus as wittiness my hand and seal this third day of Aprill 1712
